

You are a poet!

Finish these poems about mammals by filling in the blanks.

Whether you're a kitten
Or puppy (him or her)
We know you are a mammal
Because you have soft _____.

Most mammals walk, but many swim,
Like whales (imagine that!)
But one kind flies in darkest night:
The tiny, big-eared _____.

Some mammal babies newly born
Are bare, some soft as silk,
But rough or smooth as they may be,
They all drink mother's _____.

Warm-blooded is a term that's used.
"Endothermic": even better.
They mean that the inside of us
Keeps _____ without a sweater.

Mammal babes don't come in eggs.
They need no shell to thrive.
Those babies come right straight from mom;
We call it "born _____."

Some are so tiny, like chipmunks or mice.
Some have a long, lovely tail.
Mammals are different, in style and size,
Including as large as a _____.
